Dear Parishioners,

ANNIVERSARIES. There are two happy anniversaries, both eminent, one imminent, of which I want to make you aware.

Immaculate Conception. We'll start with the eminence that is imminent: Immaculate Conception Parish in Marydel, this December will be celebrating its 100th Anniversary of the Dedication of its Church. Certainly, one of the most beautiful churches in our Diocese, the Church was dedicated at Midnight Mass on Christmas of 1918. The Church has been expanded a few times but retains much of its original structure. The parish will be having a lallaloosa of a celebration for this event on December 8 (Solemnity of the Immaculate Conception) starting with a Mass celebrated by Bishop Malooly and followed by a celebratory dinner at the Marydel Firehouse afterwards. For more information contact the ICC parish office or check parish website later this month for details. Happy 100th!

Holy Cross. Now for the eminence of that is not imminent but in the offing: Holy Cross Parish will be celebrating its 150th Anniversary in 2020. Holy Cross is only two years younger than the Diocese itself; prior to the Parish being established, Dover was the only U.S. state capital city not to have a Catholic Parish. That was remedied in 1870, when Bishop Becker wanted the new Parish to "raise high the cross in Dover, for all to see." And, as they say, the rest is history. Now, in our second location, and in our third church, we prepare for an exciting 150th Anniversary celebration. In early 2019, I will be appointing a committee to prepare ye the way for the coming of this great event. More details to follow!

RESPECT LIFE MONTH. October is Respect Life Month – within the greater context of the value of human life, there is no issue more central to contemporary Catholic life than the scourge of abortion which scars both our civil and political landscape. The murderous truth of abortion is that society has – in the most clinical of language – normalized the taking of an innocent human life in the framework of a "procedure." Abortion is not a mere procedure in the way an appendectomy, or tonsillectomy is – those procedures are done to make someone better and healthier and improve their lives. An abortion as a procedure does quite the opposite; it ends life by excising it like a tumor – but a child is not a tumor, and a pregnancy is not an illness to be cured. A child is a person, worthy of protection and possessing dignity, with a moral, ethical and Constitutional "Right to Life."

Good News. The good news on this issue, is that public opinion has swayed away from "Abortion on demand." In 1995, only 33% of Americans identified themselves as "Pro-Life," with 56% favoring abortion (so called, "pro-choice"). In the past few years, the "Pro Life" number has risen to 50%, and those identify with the "pro-choice" label, has decreased into mid-to-upper 40% zone. There are more hearts and minds to change but much headway has been made.

Confusing Reporting. One of the "respect life" issues within the greater abortion issue that raised my ire most is a story that got a great deal of coverage in the national and international press, about a year ago. It was a headline from overseas that first caught my eye in this ire-rising matter. It was in the UK newspaper, "The Independent," that I saw (online) the headline: "Iceland Close to Becoming First Country where no Down's Syndrome Children are Born." This story was then picked up by all the major US media outlets. I was intrigued – what did our Icelandic neighbors know that we didn't? How were they curing or preventing Down Syndrome?

Cure vs. Kill. Well, it turns out they weren't curing or preventing Down Syndrome at all. What they were and are doing in Iceland is screening for Down Syndrome during pregnancies – and then counselling women to abort their child, by putting forth all the burdens of having a Down Syndrome child. The abortion rate in Iceland for Down Syndrome babies is nearly 100%. So, in a sense that one headline was kind of correct: "Iceland Close to Becoming First Country where no Down's Syndrome Children are Born." To be more accurate, the headline should have read: "Iceland Close to Becoming the First Country where all Down Syndrome Children are Killed." Painful, blunt, but more accurate.

Remembering Polio. Back in the 1950s society was ridden of Polio – a terrible disease that destroyed the lives of so many. It was eradicated by a cure put forth by Dr. Jonas Salk. And today Polio is a rarely found disease. Polio wasn't eradicated by ending the lives of Polio victims, it is eradicated by helping to cure the disease. You don't cure people by ending their lives. You cure sick people by providing help and healing, assistance and care. Calling what is going on in Iceland isn't the eradication of a disease, it is the eradication of the patient. If that is deemed a "cure," then word "cure" should sue for defamation!

The Right to Life. The point I make during this Respect Life Month is a simple one: Human beings have a right to life, a right to be born. We have laws that protect human life and its dignity: there are law against murder, rape, slavery, etc. Likewise, in most states, if a mother is carrying a child in her womb and is murdered, the killer can be charged with two murders: the mother and the child in the womb. Why? Because a child in the womb is not less worthy of protection, or value, or help, or healing, or assistance or care; that child is not less worthy of the right to life.

During this Respect Life Month, I commend each of you and all of us, to ponder on the significance and value of human life entrusted to us by God. Whether by prayer, action, counsel, or persuasion, each of us can have in role in changing the hearts and minds of people who oppose us on this issue. In a special way, we should exercise faithful citizenship to pray for and to persuade those who exercise political power to use that power to protect human life, from the moment of conception to natural death.

Yours in Christ,
Fr. James Lentini, Pastor

SCHOOL UPDATE

Beloved, I pray that in all respects you may prosper and be in good health, just as your soul prospers. John 3:1-2

Its morning...it can either be the best part of the day or the most chaotic. For most families with school age children it tends to lean more toward the chaotic. Unless the family has a plan to prepare for the following day during the evening beforehand, the morning can bring nothing but frenzy.

Consider this scenario...the alarm clocks ring in different parts of the house at different times. No one responds to the reminder that it's time to rise and shine! Maybe ten minutes later, the pesky sounds strike again. I've never heard a pleasant or appealing alarm---it's a contradiction in terms. Finally, mom or dad is the first to rise---forget the shine part. His attempt to rouse the rest of the family is futile. The elevation in voice is inevitable. There might be tears...the youngest ones are still tired. But it's a school day and the family forces themselves into the morning routine. Getting dressed, (where's my other shoe??) stuff the book-bags, don't forget to print out your essay....what do you mean we're out of ink??? Do we have music today---where's my flute? We have a game after school---has anybody seen my shin guards? Mom!! Did you sign my permission slip for the field trip?! I won't be able to go if you didn't...

My somewhat exaggerated scenario ends with the kids plopping in the family vehicle with a pop-tart in hand....breakfast has been served. Hopefully once these children have settled into the structured routine of the school day, the rest of the day will be relatively peaceful. But, for some, it simply will not be. Why? Well for starters---let's consider the pop-tart.

Children and adults both need a better start to face the day. The right mix of carbohydrates, protein, and fat that will keep us going and focused until lunch time. If I may be so bold as to suggest some alternatives to the quick and easy pop tart or donut out of a box; below I have listed a few breakfast ideas that require only slightly more time or planning than cereal so morning can still move quickly without skipping a nutritious meal. Some are items that can be prepared ahead of time for basically zero-prep breakfasts for those rapid moving mornings.

- Overnight oats: I love this new invention. All you need to get started is regular rolled oats, milk and a sweetener like mashed banana, or honey. Add nut butters, fruit, or anything you might have on hand.
- Hard boiled eggs: Along with fruit and a piece of toast and leave the house fueled for the day.
- "Egg muffins:" These baked egg cups are very simple. Look online for the recipes.
- Smoothies: Another great option to get out of the house quickly. Fresh fruit, milk, or even veggies start off the day in the right way!
- Yogurt, granola, fruit: You can't beat that combination.
- Low-sugar cereals: If the first ingredient is sugar, put the box back on the shelf. Don't forget the toast or bagel!!

As a child breakfast was tough. A bowl of hot soup was preferable to breakfast food items my mother had in the pantry. There are so many healthier alternative—I encourage you to explore them and help you family "break the fast" and set the course for a productive and successful day.
